Alexandria Gazette 1877

WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 27.

ABRUPT FINALE OF A FISHING EXCURSION Last Saturday night a fishing party from this city, composed of Rev. J. M. Rawlings and Messrs. A. F. and W. B. Robertson and Dr. W. S. Morris, encamped on the north fork of Tye river, in Nelson, intending to devote Monday to a campaign against the trout in that stream. Having stretched their tent under a bluff they retired to rest, and between 10 and 11 o'clock at night parties living in the neighborhood commenced rolling huge stones down the mountain, some of which broke through the tent, awakening its sleeping inmates. One of the stones struck a large goods box in the tent, smashing it into atoms, and one of the pieces struck Dr. Morris on the head, inflicting a paintul if not dangerous wound.

Some of the people, who are evidently averse to strangers fishing there, seemed to have resolved upon breaking up the camp, and the only wonder is that nobody was killed. The party decamped at once, and Dr. Morris is now attended by brother physicians, who are untiriog in their efforts to make him comfortable .-Lynchburg News.
